2. It shall consist of the Chancellor, the Secretary of War, and Secretary of the Treasury. They shall be appointed by the Crown.

3. The Chancellor is first amongst equals.

Article III – Of the States

1. The states shall be created by an Act of the Crown, once they meet certain conditions including (1) submitting to the Crown's authority, (2) submitting to the Catholic Faith, and (3) affirming the goals of Eleuedla. They may operate autonomously from the confederal government, in accordance with their separate legal and cultural traditions.
2. The states may form their own civil codes based upon their separate legal customs with permission from the Crown.
3. The legal authority of the states derives from their lawful authorities and from the authority of the Crown.
4. The Crown promises to protect the states.
5. The states and territories may form new subdivisions, combine to form new states or territories, etc, provided they inform the Crown and the Higher Councils in advance.
2. The Crown guarantees the natural rights of the individual to (1) life, (2) property, and to (3) family. These rights can not be revoked.
3. The Crown guarantees certain civil rights of the individual that are dependent on the civil duties of the individual. These civil rights are to (1) ownership of weaponry, to (2) private worship, and to (3) peaceful assembly.
4. The civil duties are required for certain participation in governments in Eleuedla. They are to the service of the nation-state and to the local community. All men aged eighteen and above are required to serve in the military to the best of their mental and physical abilities.

Article V – Additional Provisions

1. This act shall be referred to as Royal Decree 26.1, or as the Royal Decree on Government.
2. This act may be amended six months after its commencement and assent as law.

Article IV – Of the Peoples

1. The Kingdom of Eleuedla is a union of nation-states under the authority of one Crown. As such, the Crown affirms its duty to protect its peoples and their traditions. The Crown has a responsibility of protecting the peoples from their enemies.

Royal Decree on State Distinctions

The promotion of one territory as a state under the Royal Decree on Government and the formation of certain state distinctions.

Article I – Of State Distinctions
